Assistive Technology

Did you know that all students receiving Special Education services MUST be considered for assistive technology (AT)? Are you prepared to be part of this discussion during your student's next IEP meeting? Join Debbie Drennan, Assistive Technology Specialist at Parents Helping Parents, for an overview of the laws and best practices in AT consideration. You will learn:

- What AT is and how your student might benefit
- How to appropriately consider AT for your student
- When AT assessment is necessary

You will also see a small sampling of low-tech tools in the areas of reading, writing, communication, social skills and access, and find out about the many useful internet tools and resources to assist IEP teams during the consideration process.
